Clubs Hold Meeting At Sir Arthur's Residence

I. J. K. SNYDER SPEAKS OF PAN-EUROPA IDEA

Philip Foran Reads Report Of Delegates To Toronto Model Assembly

"Party politics kept the United States out of the League of Nations," stated Isobel Alexander in a paper on the "United States and the League of Nations" delivered last evening at the joint meeting of the League of Nations Club and House of Commons Clubs at the home of Sir Arthur Currie.

J. K. Snyder also delivered a paper on "The United States of Europe." In opening the meeting Philip Foran, president of the League of Nations Club, read the report of the delegates from the McGill League of Nations Club to the Model Assembly of the League of Nations at Toronto University. Miss Mary McGeechey of the Information Branch of the Secretariat of the League of Nations at Geneva was an honored guest.

States Reasons

For the theme of her paper Isobel Alexander stated the reasons why the United States refused to ratify the Covenant of the League and why they have, to the present, held aloof from the World Court. The League had the commendation of the majority of both Houses of Congress, the endorsement of thirty large church organizations of the country and the support of the best minds of the country, yet it did not receive the sanction of the United States.

It was refused either endorsement of modification, and this was because it became part of party politics, claimed the speaker. It soon became apparent that the Republicans were going to make the League an issue in the elections even though most of their party were for it. There was at that time a great need of an issue and as the tariff question was dead the question of the League was drawn in.

Other Objections

But besides party politics and their influence there were also other objections on the part of the U.S.A. The famous article 10 was one of the main contentions. That the youth of America could be sent over to fight about the European shambles was not convincing to the United States but they could have easily inserted a

Izzy Aspler Charms Crowds At Jazz Tea

Music In Cafeteria Again Proves Popular

Hordes of jazz enthusiasts thronged the Union Cafeteria yesterday afternoon to applaud the sterling playing of Izzy Aspler and his university band of merry-makers. The audience had been promised Izzy and they got him with all his myrmidons in fine fettle.

For an hour and a half Izzy and his gang held the assembly enthralled by their mastery of the rhythms of jazz. Theirs was a perfect exhibition of how the very best may be obtained from the throbbing syncopation of which their program was composed. Such was the power of the music that more than one tea-lover was observed to leave his cup untasted as he swayed with the rhythm of "Happy Days" or "Limbohouse Blues."

So great was the influence of the orchestra's playing that at one point the front fell out of the piano, proving that the very instruments were entering into the spirit of the gathering.

Many of the regular jazz-tea habitués were noticed among the audience as well as a few new-comers being initiated into the joys of the cafeteria dainties partaken under the spell of Izzy Aspler's wizardry.

Speaker To Discuss League Of Nations

Miss M. A. Craig McGeechey, of the Information Department of the League of Nations, will be the guest-speaker at the S.C.A. "At Home," which takes place this evening at 8:30 p.m., in Strathcona Hall. Her topic will be "The League of Nations."

Vanity Victor Over Modesty

Impromptu Debaters Find Self-Assurance Valuable

AL. WATT JUDGES

Lusher, Alchin, Currie And Cerini Enter Arts '32 Final Contest Next Week

"Vain men show their best points, while modest men, by their very modesty, set up a barrier between themselves and the rest of the world," declared R. H. Alchin, upholding the question, "Resolved that vanity is of more value to a man than modesty," in the impromptu semi-finals of the Arts '32 debates yesterday.

Alchin and Lusher obtained an easy win over their opponents, Doodie and Ritchie, because the former spoke on vanity as related to the individual, while the latter went beside the point, in the opinion of the judge, in discussing vanity in relation to mankind as a whole.

Vanity Gives Confidence.

Speaking for the affirmative, Alchin pointed out that vanity gives men self-assurance, and gave as examples a travelling salesman, a public speaker, and an athlete. In such men, over-rating their abilities is better than under-rating them.

Continuing the argument for the affirmative, David Lusher stated that a modest man sees his own limitations. It is the man who sees no limitations who climbs the highest. All leaders are vain. The United States, for example, is vain, but it has something about which to be vain.

Vain Man Useless

Hubert Doody, arguing for the negative, declared that a modest man is a man in the real sense. Vanity is a state in which one lives in a world outside one's own, and the speaker questioned how success could be achieved in such a state. The greatest work in the world has been done by modest men, he remarked. A vain man is self-centered and of use only to himself.

Ken Ritchie concluded the negative argument by declaring that modest men always strive to help others.

Reg. Anderson presided over the debate, which was judged by Al. Watt. The winners, Alchin and Lusher, will meet Currie and Cerini for the debating championship of Arts '32 next Thursday.

Famous Chemist To Lecture At McGill

Dr. Kasimir Fajans coming From Germany

Dr. Kasimir Fajans, one of Europe's foremost physical chemists, and professor of physical chemistry at the University of Munich, Germany, will deliver two open lectures at McGill this week.

Dr. Fajans, who holds the George Fisher Baker non-resident lectureship in chemistry at Cornell University this year, will speak on "Developments in the Concepts of the Nature of Chemical Forces" in the Chemistry Building at 8:15 o'clock Friday evening under the auspices of the Sigma Xi Society and the Department of Chemistry.

He will speak in the same building at 12 o'clock noon Saturday on "Experimental Investigations in Connection with the Theory of Deformation of Ions" under the auspices of the Chemical Society.

Production Nearing End As Show Makes Debut Next Wednesday Night

When the Red and White Revue of 1930 opens next Wednesday evening in the Moyses Hall for a four days' run, a capacity audience will view a dance music-skit program that bids fair to equal or surpass any production staged in the past. Rehearsals of every presentation in the revue have been going on during the past few weeks, with the first general rehearsal called for tomorrow. The list of patrons was announced today.

A crowd of eager students, that waited in line from the wee hours of the morning, greeted the box office as the tickets went on sale yesterday in the Union. A heavy barrage of requests assailed the ticket committee all day and reports announce that for Saturday evening's performance nothing but single seats may be obtained. Thursday, Friday and Saturday matinee presentations are also fairly well sold out, and the ticket office will be open from 9 to 6 in the next few days to dispose of several good seats still on hand.

The Graduates Committee state that the pasteborders for Wednesday, the opening night, have almost completely been disposed of. The first performance will have a highly critical audience on hand to view the ushers in of the first revue to play in the Moyses Hall.

English Class Plays "Funeral"

Clever Satire Provides Excellent Evening's Entertainment

"The Funeral"—a satirical comedy—is the first Sir Richard Steele Play to be produced in Moyses Hall. The class of English 13 handled the difficult character interpretation with admirable skill.

The Play satirizes the habits of the eighteenth century, and the very affected manner of living in those times. The story deals with a nobleman—Lord Brumpton—who is supposed to have died and left a large wealth to his beautiful widow, who had caused him to disown his son in his favour. However the son, and his friend, fall in love with the Dowager's two wards, and finally succeed in marrying them with the help of the family servants and the French maid. The old Earl had never really died, and his various appearances on the stage helped very much to the confounding of the Dowager's plans.

Characterization Difficult

The four chief characters, Lord Hardy, Thomas Cumpley, Sharlot and Harriot, were extremely well together, and gave very convincing performances. The part of the Dowager Lady Brumpton was well played. The minor characters played up very well, many of them requiring difficult portrayal.

The scenery and costume designs are to be heartily congratulated heavily. The complete cast is as follows: Lord Brumpton . . . Fred S. Urquhart Lord Hardy . . . Jacques A. Herli Thomas Cumpley . . . X-Rays Reveal Atom Structure

Methods Of Research Described In Lecture

BY DR. W. H. BARNES

Explains Regular Arrangement Of Atoms In Crystalline Substances

"By means of radiography we can see into the interior of solid objects; by means of the defraction effects of X-rays we can study the very basic composition of matter, the arrangement of the composing particles, and the size of the atoms." Such were the closing words of Dr. William Howard Barnes' lecture last night at the Mechanics Institute on the subject "Hidden Mysteries of Nature Revealed by X-rays."

Dr. Barnes opened his lecture by illustrating the atomic structure of crystalline and amorphous substances. He went on to explain the methods of calculating the size and arrangement of atoms in a crystal by means of passing single wave X-rays through the substance, the waves being deflected by the regular planes of atomic structure. The deflected rays leave imprints on a photographic plate, enabling the experimenter to calculate the arrangement of the atoms.

Illustrated Atomic Arrangement
The speaker illustrated the arrangement of atoms in various substances as discovered by this method, showing how modern scientists may pry into nature's innermost secret, the basic composition of matter.

Dr. Barnes then turned to the common use of X-rays in medical and metallurgical work. He explained how various parts of the body may be shadow photographed by injecting them with substances to X-rays, when there are no bones or similar matter to resist the passage of the rays toward the photographic plate. The utility in revealing hidden defects in metal castings are weldings was also touched upon.

Hendel To Lecture On Idealism Today

First Of Four Addresses Is At Five O'clock

Dr. G. W. Hendel, Chairman of the Department of Philosophy, will give the first of a series of four lectures on "Idealism in Modern Life" this afternoon at 5 o'clock in Room 20 of the Arts Building. "The Nature of Idealism" will be the topic discussed by Dr. Hendel in the first lecture.

In January Dr. Hendel delivered this series before the Present Day Club and the Philosophical Club at Princeton N.J. The lectures are scrutinized in preparation for an article to be published in a volume of collaborative essays to be entitled "Contemporary American Idealism."

Due to the criticisms directed at their doctrine by pragmatists and realists, the contemporary idealists are now endeavoring to restate their former position. They want to present the evidence anew and to show the value of the idealistic point of view for the interpretation of social and political life and of science and religion. The present series of lectures concentrates on the political and ethical meaning of Idealism.

Women's Intercollegiate Debating Union Adopts Parliamentary Method

Victory came to the government at the first co-ed Mock Parliament held yesterday afternoon in the R.V.C. Common Room. Parliamentary form of debate has been entered upon by the R.V.C. as a result of the decision of the Women's Intercollegiate Debating Union to hold future contests in this manner.

It fell to the freshettes to successfully be the first to debate along the new lines at R.V.C. when they successfully upheld the issue that "Universities should be under state control." The decision in favor of the government was given both by the judges of the freshette debaters, and by a vote of the house following a lively discussion. Miss Ross president of the Delta Sigma Society acted as Speaker.

General Education Advantageous
Misses Steinberg and Dawson won their point in virtue of their superior delivery and presentation of facts. They pointed out that it is to the material and intellectual advantage of a country to have an educated people, and it is therefore the business of the state to provide free higher education. State controlled universities they affirmed, precludes the workers' having to stint to provide education for their children; the advances of the twentieth century places High School Education in the elementary class. State Universities give greatest regard to intellectual attainment, not recognising rank or

McGILL GRADUATE

Speaker Is Contributor To "Dial", "Nation", And Other Literary Magazines

Dr. A. J. M. Smith, the Canadian poet, will address the English Literature Society this afternoon on the influence of seventeenth century poetry on contemporary literature. The meeting is to be held in room 15 of the Arts Building at 4 o'clock.

Dr. Smith is one of the most celebrated of our younger Canadian poets. He was a regular contributor to America's leading literary magazine, "The Dial," before that magazine ceased publication last year, and he has long been a favorite with readers of "The Nation" and the "London Aphrodite." In Canada he has contributed poems and critical prose articles to the "Canadian Forum."

McGill Graduate

Dr. Smith graduated from McGill in 1925 with a B.A. in arts. The following year he specialized in English literature and obtained his master's degree. Being the recipient of a scholarship he proceeded to the University of Edinburgh, where after two years of intensive study of seventeenth century poetry he was granted his Ph.D. degree.

The speaker had a distinguished undergraduate career at McGill. He was the founder and editor of the Literary Supplement to the Daily, a venture which resulted in the establishment of the McGill Fortnightly Review. Dr. Smith was one of the editors of this magazine during its two years of existence as a medium of expression for literary and artistic opinion at McGill.

Dr. Alfred Scully Not In University Records

Dr. Alfred Scully, of Cleveland Ohio, who was found dead in his office last Monday evening with a bullet wound over the heart, is not a graduate of McGill University, as has been given in dispatches from Cleveland, according to officials in the registrar's office at the university here.

Records show that Dr. Scully never attended McGill. The latest compiled list of former students at McGill includes two students with the name of Scully, one of whom is a Montreal doctor and another who died some years ago.

Dr. Hough Tells How To Enjoy Literary Works

Reader Should Be More Critical In His Selection Of Books

WARNS OF DANGERS

Speaker Outlines Purposes Of Reading At De Hirsch Book Club

"He does meticulous work in almost complete darkness," said Dr. Hough, quoting Virginia Woolfe, last night at the meeting of the Baron de Hirsch Institute Book Club, when he spoke on the "Lure of Books." He was speaking of the modern artist, in the broad sense of the word.

The work turned out by the authors of to-day seems to lack that rapture which characterized the writers of previous centuries. "Why is it," he asked, "that the writers who live amidst wealth and have all that they want appear pessimistic, while those who live under great hardships, always suffering and handicapped by great disadvantages, show great optimism. As examples of these writers, Dr. Hough cited Robinson, who exhibits only disillusionment, and Milton, who, though blind and old, wrote "Paradise Lost" and "Paradise Regained."

Scores Self-Complacency

He ventured to suggest that the probable reason was the self-complacency, self-confidence, and general feeling of satisfaction that overtakes those in comfortable circumstances. Fearfulness of any description is always obtained through suffering and pain. Dante was exiled from his native Florence, and during his exile he wrote "The Divine Comedy." Dr. Hough said that it was one of his favorite books and quoted many lines. Dante refused to receive the crown of literary fame from any city but his Florence.

In speaking of the dangers that arise from too much reading the lecturer said that one is likely to lose the power of action. One develops an analytic mind like Hamlet; one forgets how to act quickly and decisively. But if one reads only quickly moving stirring books one will in a certain measure retain one's power of activity. Again, one must not try to read everything that is published, because then the mind be-

REPORTS around the campus state that athletic interest has turned from hockey to interfaculty baseball. Law, Commerce, Arts and Science comprise the "Big Four" which will go into another season of activity starting Monday. All squads are busily engaged in pre-season training, while scouts are still engaged in looking around for sufficient material to make the baseball race a close one.

America's national pastime will make its official debut this Monday afternoon when the Law nine stack up against the far-famed Commerce baseball squad. The business men have just concluded a pre-season training period in an unknown vicinity, reputed to be near Vassar, N.Y. The squad will entrain for Port La Pluffe for a two-day final workout to-morrow.

Little is known of the ability of the legal diamond boys but it is expected that last minute signatures on the part of prominent players will augment the squad's staff. Klein, erst-while southpaw, will once more be seen in action along with such veterans as Nairn and Gammell. Cohen, Foran, Goldenberg and Mulally make up an infield that will be hard to beat.

Notes Wired From Training Camps

CLUB TAVERN, March 7th, 1936—(Special to the Daily by staff correspondent)—Spring Season training of the Commerce Baseball squad is rumoured to commence this weekend. Playing Manager Howie Baker is taking the boys to Bord a Plouffe for pre-season workouts, although there was a strong feeling in favour of locating at Vassar, N.Y. Prohibition laws, however, prevented action in this direction.

Much difficulty is being experienced in locating the old-timers who are at present in hiding and rumoured to be holding out. When interviewed at 5 A.M. this morning at the Prolix Cabaret, Harry Ritchie and Sam Granger would give no ultimatum, but it is understood that they will sign the dotted line if the little matter of salary is straightened. Howard Baker and Al Swabey had a lengthy conference together with Ed Seybold, George McTeer, renowned sluggers, and Bert MacGillivray, diminutive outfielder, this morning. The latter refused to report at training camp on the plea that a good season had been experienced by the team last year, and that his salary must be increased this year from seventy to eighty-five cents. Other holdouts of special note are Ralph St. Germain, speedy outfielder, D'Arcy Doherty, second base wizard and Joe Altner.

All taverns, blind-pigs and municipal halls are to be searched within the next twenty-four hours, and it is hoped that the results will bring the team up to its full strength. A special immigrant train has been chartered to take the boys to Bord a Plouffe, and leaves BOMADVENTURE STATION at 8.15 a.m. tomorrow morning. (Police Gazette please copy) For those that miss the train, however, there will be a meeting in the Smoking Room of the Arts Building at 12 o'clock.

Lawyers Active

(Special to the Daily by One-Eyed Connolly.)

Pig & Whistle, District of Montreal, Province of Quebec, Mar. 7.—The Law Baseball team underwent a very strenuous workout this afternoon in preparation for their assured first position in the league's standing at the culmination of this year's baseball season. Although the Lawyers are not trying to be too optimistic yet they can't help being frank upon the eventualities that are bound to take place barring a gas fortuit or force majeure.

After the usual refreshments, it was intimated from the manager that the team will entrain on a special car to places hitherto unknown where a series of secret practices will take place to prime up the well conditioned team. "The boys are just rarin' to go," was all that the reporter could make out from the last minute conversation that ensued between the Daily Press representative and the manager.

Although the rumour prevalent around the Law Faculty is that the boys jaunted away to the Prolix, Radio Cafe, Flo's, Kid Droppers and other well-known places for their training yet this statement is considered as hardly well-founded.

Squad Intact
The team is practically intact from last year except that the Lawyers are very fortunate in acquiring such additions to their squad as the well-known Ross Paterson, Jimmy Walsh and the renowned Saul Hayes. The tentative line up for Monday will be constituted of the following players: Edrich, covering home plate with his faultless catching and Klein taking the twirling with his usual increased lightning speed. First base will be in charge with the reliable Gordie Nairn O.L.U. who has handled that position since the McGill Centenary Convention. Second base will be very carefully handled by Lang the heaviest hitter who has ever attended lectures in the University.

The hot corner which has been assigned to Ross Paterson is considered to be in the best of fettle for the initial contest on Monday. The rest of the team will be composed of the already well-known players as Gammell, Hayes, Leithman, Blond, Walsh, etc.

The versatile Gammell has consented to give up the ancient practice of felling for his new role on the Law baseball team. This old timer has on more than one occasion been summoned to fill up the gap on the Law football, swimming, wrestling and baseball teams.

A great deal of controversy is now going on as to the selection of a suitable place where to place the silverware representing the interfaculty championship, but it is now practically settled that the cup will adorn the Lawyers Smoking Room on a hand painted pedestal, the painting being executed by the Law Choral Society.

This afternoon's practice was broken up at 11 P.M. with a soulful rendition of "My Wild Irish Rose."

cally on the verge of completion indicates that the musical numbers, skits, song and specialty number acts will be liberally sprinkled through the performance. Some twenty or so offerings complete a program that should produce several big hits, especially from among the musical compositions. Those who heard excerpts from the revue songs at the Plumbers' Hall are loud in their praise of them and to all intents and purposes next weeks show will bring forth several original musical selections that should spring into popularity.

Reports from various other departments announce their work rapidly nearing a close. The properties are being collected and will be forwarded to the Arts Building in a day or so while the students looking after the costume, scenery and stage ends of the production are busily engaged in their respective departments in bringing their work to a climax. This year's show promises to offer several innovations in lighting and scenery effects that will invariably draw appreciative comment.

Basketball Notes

One of the fastest games of the season in the Theological league was played in the Montreal High last night when the United College basketball team downed the Diocesan men by a score of 23 to 11. The first period opened with loose play on both sides but the Diocesan men were just ahead at half time by 3 to 2.

The play had hardly started in the second period when McKenzie of the U.C. switched to forward and started on a scoring rampage and dropped in two field baskets almost before the opponents realized the play had started.

The United boys increased their lead when Dangerfield who was playing a splendid game combined with Woodward and Froats in a good exhibition of passing, while MacRae played a steady game at guard.

Addie was the star of his team, scoring 10 of the 11 points, while McKenzie was the outstanding man on the floor, and netted 13 points for his team.

The game was handled by Wes Campbell in a very efficient manner.

McGill Teaches Self-Reliance

Sir Arthur Gives Aims Of University

IN QUEBEC CITY

Says College Graduates Should Be Able To Stand Alone In World

Quebec City, McGill University is preparing its young men to meet and conquer all the chances and changes of time and equipping them for that role, that they may go forth as master adventurers in the fields of opportunity.

This was the splendid assurance, delivered with a wealth of feeling and sincerity by Sir Arthur Currie, principal of the University at the banquet of the McGill Graduate Society of this city held Saturday night in the Chateau Frontenac, under the presidency of Hon. L. A. Taschereau, premier of the province of Quebec.

"College education should teach a man to stand alone," Sir Arthur asserted, and told the graduates that despite certain monetary difficulties and a share of adverse criticism, McGill was courageously adhering to the fine old traditions of former years, and was fitting its students for achievement and citizenship.

Work at Macdonald

Sir Arthur also gave a very interesting glimpse into the agricultural research that is being carried out at Macdonald College, calling especial attention to the achievement in the development of wheat, barley, oats, corn, grasses and clover. One variety of wheat perfected in the college, he said, is now grown extensively in southern Alberta and claims the world record for yield.

Macdonald College has produced an improved oat known as banner 41 M.C., with a production record of three bushels per acre better than ordinary banner, the prevailing oat of the province. He illustrated the importance of this by pointing out that the production of a variety of oats that will increase the yield per acre by only a single bushel per acre means an increase of nearly 2,000,000 bushels in the most important grain crop in Quebec.

sentence which could have remained and even then if they had found that their position in the League was untenable they could have withdrawn after they had given the requisite two years as notice of intention to do so.

In conclusion it would seem that the correct attitude for the United States in regard to the World Court is to be found in Mr. Hughes' address on the Court before the Association of the Bar of the City of New York stated the speaker, "The judicial settlement of international disputes cannot be adequately secured by sporadic, occasional efforts. There should be continuity, permanency, the opportunity for the growth of confidence and for the firm establishment of the tradition both of competency and judicial independence. To hold aloof is to belie out aspiration. In supporting the World Court in the manner proposed we lose nothing that we could otherwise preserve."

Founder of Pan-Europa Idea

Speaking of the growth of the Pan-Europa idea, Jack Snyder in his paper said that it was no exaggeration to say that the responsible person was Count Henry von Dethlefsen-Katzenberg. Of very mixed parentage, such an idea of a cosmopolitan commonwealth was not out of place with this individual. There are five groups, of which the British Empire and Pan-Europa form two.

The plea was to "federate or fall. By this means Europe would be able to provide for its members (1) Security from inter-European war, (2) Neutralization of Europe in world conflicts, (3) Protection against invasion by Soviet Russia, (4) The possibility of disarmament, (5) The ability to compete with American industry. Pan-Europa would be welcomed by capitalists as suiting their present purposes and by Socialists as facilitating their ultimate aims. The four hostile groups to be reckoned with were (1) The national chauvinists, (2) The communists, (3) The Militarists, (4) The protected industries in various states which would foresee ruin as following from trade. But these latter would be outweighed by the other great advantages which confronts Europe if it does not federate.

"Begorra—

an' look at the whiskers," chaffed David as he faced The Pride of the Philistines.

"Indad, an' I niver laid eyes on sich a hairy faced divil. An' will ye gaze at the length an' width an' the critter who thinks that wee David he'll stretch on the Canvas. Sure an' the divil niver made greater. An' look at the pleasure and comfort of life he is missing, for the giant bog trotter could niver fit in a STANDARD CAB.

Begorra, take that!"

So saying he gave The Pride of the Philistines a stone on the button and, turning to his army, said

"Sure an' the man isn't livin' that wouldn't be comfortable in a STANDARD CAB."
